

Home Learning

Home learning is an extension of the school programme and supports, enhances, and consolidates teaching and learning. It provides a positive link between home and school.

The class teacher:

- outlines expectations, routines and suggested time requirements for home learning to students and parents at the start of the year
- sets home learning that reflects students' changing ages and stages, individual needs, and reinforces teaching and learning
- sets home learning which considers the key competencies of the New Zealand Curriculum, namely, managing self, relating to others, participating and contributing, thinking, and using language, symbols, and texts
- monitors home learning and provides constructive feedback to students and parents
- ensures students understand their home learning tasks and can work independently, where possible
- communicates home learning concerns to parents.

Students:

- are responsible for their own home learning
- understand their home learning tasks and work as independently as possible.

Parents:

- encourage and support their children
- provide feedback to the child and the teacher
- communicate with the teacher if their child is unable to complete the home learning, or if family or other circumstances take priority.
